Staples-Motley ready for distance learning

By Loren Walz Communications & Marketing Director, Staples-Motley School District

Staples-Motley School District has been closed for six weeks due to the coronavirus pandemic, and is in week five of state-mandated distance learning. A new venture for all in education, the coronavirus closure hasn't looked like snow days or summer break - instead, it's been an all-hands-on-deck effort to continue to care for district students in innovative ways.

Governor Walz's initial closure mandate gave districts two weeks to plan for distance learning, a time administrators and teachers were grateful for as they considered alternate delivery of instruction to students with a wide variance of access to technol-

Teaching and Learning Coordinator Debbie Ferdon assisted with supporting teachers and creating our districts' distance learning plan. She said "teachers spent the first few days trying to wrap their minds around what it was we were tasked with and how to create equitable educational experiences for all students. In two weeks we were essentially re-inventing education as we know it." On top of that, there was a real sense of grief among staff that they wouldn't be seeing and interacting with kids on a daily basis. "Connections with kids are what teachers are best at," Ferdon said. "The relationships that have been built have been abruptly cut off, and teachers have had to get creative about how they will engage and connect with kids.

As teaching staff and administrators developed the distance learning plan for the district, food service staff, with the support of transportation, paraprofessionals and secretarial staff, didn't miss a single day providing meals for students, and added weekend meals beginning the first weekend in April with the Governor's stay home order. Nutrition Services Director Brittany Zuhlsdorf and her team met a variety of challenges with ingenuity to make sure no child in our district went hungry during this uncertain time. At the time of this printing, the Staples-Motley food service team has distributed more than 50,000 meals to children ages 18 and under.

One requirement of the coronavirus school closure was that districts offer care for school-aged children of essential workers (Staples-Motley also has care available for younger children of essential workers at Little Cardinals Academy). One of the many roles our paraprofessionals fill during this closure is running this care in the elementary school. Paraprofessional Amanda Burton detailed the variety of assignments she's had in the six week closure from assisting with meals and supporting teachers' efforts in distance learning, to her time serving the district in school-age care. Amanda shared how the paras work with children of essential workers on their distance learning assignments and try to help them pass the time in meaningful ways. She says 'some paras have even used their time at home to come up with different activities and fun projects." This extra effort is obvious in the painted windows that brighten 4th Street and the birdhouses carefully decorated to bring joy to the community's most vulnerable.

Okay, so district children are fed, and children of essential workers are being cared for, but what is distance learning? Taking classroom instruction and transforming it into something both accessible and effective in students' homes is challenging. Communication is absolutely key for distance learning, as 6th Grade Science teacher Laurie Trout shared: "Most of my time is spent answering emails from students or trying to catch others on the phone.' Because almost a third of her students do not have

Working towards recovery

By Mark Anderson Managing Editor

Local economic development offices are playing a role in making sure businesses don't fall through the cracks in the nationwide effort to keep the economy going during the COVID-19 crisis and Minnesota's stay-at-home order.

At the Staples Chamber of Commerce weekly online meeting on April 22, Jacki Anderson of U.S. Representative Collin Peterson's office said several national bills are getting more money going to small businesses, but some are falling through the

"We work with local EDAs to fill in the gaps that we are aware," said Ander-

Staples Economic Development Director Melissa Radermacher said she is working on a loan program for businesses affected by the Governor's stay-athome order.

The purpose of the local loan would be to provide gap funding to keep the ousiness going until money from the national stimulus bills comes in.

Radermacher said she is also working on what will be coming after the stay-at-home order, when businesses are starting up again. Ideas to help the restart include a loan program and social support program.

She also said some of the money from the city's tourism budget is now going to buying masks and other protective equipment for front line workers who are still working through the stay at home order, such as health care workers, gas stations and food workers.

Louis Crombie of U.S. Representative Pete Stauber's office said the next federal bills will have more for small business - some going to hospitals, testing.

He said a lot of people are calling for the stay at home order to be lifted, especially as the tourism season arrives.

"We are making sure we open as soon and safe as possible," said Crombie.

Hard hit industries

Brigid Tuck of the University of Minnesota Extension reviewed unemployment data and economic forecasts.

She said state economists are projecting a substantial overall loss for this year, but at the same time are projecting a recovery for next year.

"Even though we do recover, overall growth is less than predictions before COVID-19," Tuck.

Extension data shows that Todd County has a lower risk to be harmed by the economic crisis because there are a higher percentage of essential businesses that are still operating. Wadena and Cass counties are in the middle range while Morri-

Five Wings continuing to help artists

By Mark Anderson Managing Editor

The Five Wings Arts Council held an online meeting April 22, where they told a group of people involved in the arts that they have resources to help during the stay at home order caused by COVID-19.

This is unprecedented and is hurting the arts community in particular," said Mark Turner, Five Wings Executive Director. "We will accommodate any way we can.'

Turner said they will continue to provide grants for artists and can also help them set up Zoom licenses for arts organizations to hold online meetings.

While most of the grant money is already extended for this year, Turner said it will be refilled next year. But that might be at a lower amount since the Legacy Arts and Cultural Heritage Fund is partially funded by sales tax, which is expected to be much lower.

For artists who currently have grants in process, Turner said they are extending the timeline when the project must be completed and they will remove match requirements for some of the grants.

"If folks want to change those grants in any way, give us a call with those particulars," said Turner.

FWAC Grants and Program Coordinator Vicki Chepulis said she can help artists who are applying for future grants.

Chepulis said artists can also apply for Small Business Administration (SBA) loans during the COVID-19 crisis.

"Anyone earning income though the creation of art can apply for the SBA loans," said Chepulis. Some of the questions on the forms are being changed to fit different situations such as artists and arts organizations.

The arts community at the meeting also had a chance to ask questions and give suggestions on how to navigate through the crisis.

BBQ Smokehouse Plus opening soon in Motley at the Edina Realty Brainerd/Baxter sales office, is excited to help bring BBQ Smokehouse Plus to her hometown of Motley.

Bjerga represented Tyler and Kari Ehrmantraut with the purchase of the Northwind Grocery store on Highway 10. A major remodel is now underway with the hope of opening in May.

BBQ Smokehouse Plus is a fantastic addition to our community," Bjerga said. "I am thrilled to be a part of this transaction. This is a great opportunity for all of us to support Nikki Bjerga, Rwealtor local business and com- our Wadena location for munity growth, plus enjoy delicious new foods.

The new BBQ Smokehouse Plus will feature their own smoked meats, famous cowboy beans and a fresh meat counter to grab your certified Angus beef steaks and burgers, a hot deli area with daily specials, and a full grocery including frozen and dairy sections.

"We are excited to start this new adventure in Motley," the Ehrmantrauts said. "Although we are new to this area, we are not new to the retail business. We've had success in six years and will be incorporating much of what we offer there into this grocery store setting.'

The remodeling construction for the new BBQ Smokehouse Plus facility has faced challenges from the current COVID-19 pandemic, but they are moving forward and still hope to open sometime in May.

Business hours will be 8 a.m. - 8 p.m. Monday - Saturday; and 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. on Sunday, with the possibility of future adjustments based on community needs.

State unemployment numbers show that personal appearance workers, such as hair cutters, have a 60 percent unemployment rate because of the stayat-home order. Health care support is close behind with 57 percent. The restaurant industry was hit with about 23 percent of food and beverage servers that are unemployed, as well as 33 percent of cooks.

To get an idea of how much of that unemployment is local, Tuck showed statistics that before the crisis, Todd and Wadena counties had nearly 500 workers in the personal care and service, with about 600 food servers and 630 people involved in food processing.

The construction industry is still open under the state orders, but there is still a 15 percent unemployment rate in that field. Tuck said it could be because some businesses are pulling back on expansion plans at this time. "It doesn't mean the project won't go forward, but they are in 'see what happens next' mode," said Tuck.

Anderson said Representative Peterson is working with food processing plants, which are among the hardest hit industries and also the most critical

She said cities and counties are not in the federal package, but there is talk about including them in the future, especially for emergency preparedness and public health.

Ensuring that "everything in that lesson points to that question or that bottom line" has provided clarity and direction as she wades through this

Second grade teacher Heather Wiegand noted the struggle for balance both at home with her own children and as a teacher: "We are trying to not overwhelm families, yet be creative with our learning." She has found a pre-closure tool she used, Class-Dojo (an education app that allows parent/teacher/ student communication), has become essential in her day-to-day management of student learning and family communication and even allowed her a special glimpse into the lives of her students. "We are seeing families work together (through pictures) and witnessing lots of smiles. Parents are really getting to know their students' strengths and weaknesses and rising

For elementary STEAM teacher Jolene Elfstrum, the biggest hurdle was figuring out how to teach technology "in an equitable way to ALL students." Thinking out of the box, Elfstrum has sent home "unplugged" coding and engineering activities that do not require devices. When it comes to distance learning for high school choir instructor Nathan Thelen, System CEO Tim Rice said eight people have tested positive for COVID-19, two weeks after announcing the first three positive tests for the health system.

Rice said the latest projection is that the surge of multiple COVID-19 cases will come later for rural Minnesota. A state surge is projected for the end of May and rural areas will experience their surge later than that. "We are forecasting that we won't go back to normal until Sept. 1," said Rice.

Business updates

Local realtor Sandy Knosalla of Edina Realty said for the first few weeks of the stay-at-home order, the real estate business slowed down to almost nothing. But in the past week, she said there have been more home showings. "It tells me people are encouraged," said Knosalla.

She explained the very strict protocol set up where buyers come in with gloves and can't touch anything, but the home is set up with open cupboards and closets for them to view.

Nicky Anderson, owner of Magic Forest Preschool and Childcare Center in Staples, said her business is only open for the children of essential workers. For the month of April, she said they had to charge tuition for all parents, otherwise the center would not be able to stay open. She said only two of the staff are still working and the rest are on temporary furlough and getting unemployment. The center applied for three grants, but only received one.

Memories of Staples and the railroad

By Mike Holst

Someone started a Facebook memory trail of all of the graduates of Staples High School, of which I was one. It's been so much fun to see the pictures and hear the stories. It's ironic that the very school I couldn't wait to get out of, and the very town I wanted to leave in the rear-view mirror way back then, brings back such precious memories.

I did leave town, not because I wanted too so much, but more because Staples at that time had little opportunity for employment. The railroad was moving out and it wasn't until a few years later that some other small companies started up in town. I guess I always envied the ones who did make it work in Staples although I had a good life where I did go. But always my thoughts and roots went back to Staples. I think this is inherent to people and where they grow up. "You can take the boy from the country but you can't take the country from the boy." Right.

Call me crazy but somehow, I liked the smell of creosote from the railroad ties. It was later in life that I connected the dots and realized it wasn't those wooden tie's I smelled but the scent of my dad's overhauls from working long hard days in the car shops. In 1959, the year I left there was a siding full of old steam engines relegated to the scrap yard. I remember going over there one night, when I knew my days in Staples were numbered and sitting in one of those big steam engines with my arm out the window, looking down the track like those engineers did as they traveled across the prairie for decades. At the time those engines too were leaving Staples forever and it was so sad. I can still hear those steam whistles when I close my eves and see the smoke from their stacks. I remember pressing my ear to the track and feeling the vibrations of those huge steel wheels on those endless ribbons of steel track, even though the train was still out of sight. I made one last trip that spring of '59 to the roundhouse where it was always warm on a cold winter night. Saw those behemoth beasts of burden sitting in their stalls warming up for the last time. I climbed the coal docks where you could see over the whole town and sat once more on the polished benches in the depot and thought of all of the trains and people that had stopped over the years. All while listening to the clicking of the telegraph opera-

I have traveled this life's journey for the better part of eight decades. Lived in numerous towns, and in more than one state. Raised a family with my wife. Had grandkids and great grandkids. Had a career and retired and became a writer. But it seems to me if you could magickly convert memories into something tangible and put them in a box, my Staples box would be the fullest. They're my oldest memories, yet some of the most memorable.

Today we are in the middle of something that could have only been dreamed about back in 1959. Our world is going to change in ways we never thought possible. Hopefully for the better but there are so many unknowns and it's scary. I am thankful for the life I have had and I am thankful it started where it did. "In a lonely shack by the railroad track," if I can paraphrase from an old song by Gogi Grant.

Lakewood committed to protecting senior citizens during COVID-19

Kathy Dobson Vice President. Senior Services Division Lakewood Health System

There has been a lot of news coverage over the past several weeks about the impacts of COVID-19 on senior citizens. I want to describe all we are doing to protect our residents, tenants and clients of Lakewood Health System Care Center, Lakewood Pines, Lakewood Manor, Home Care, Hospice and Palliative Care.

Since the pandemic first reached the United States, we have been coordinating with industry leaders and public health officials to establish clear safeguards and protocols to prevent transmission of the virus within our senior care facilities. These aggressive efforts include policies to limit outside visitors, suspension of group activities and embracing recommendations from the Centers for Disease Control (CDC). This includes requiring our employees to wear masks at all times, increased handwashing/sanitizing, increased cleaning of buildings and using other personal protective equipment (PPE) when working with residents, tenants or clients who require this level of Senior citizens and those who live in communal settings are at greater risk of infection during this pandemic. As the virus spreads, it is inevitable some seniors and caregivers will be impacted despite all the protections we have put in place.

With any residents or tenants who test positive for COVID-19, we have a plan to inform residents and tenants and/or their representative as well as staff, as we quarantine that individual and work with the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH) on the best course of action to prevent the spread of the illness.

This pandemic has exposed our nation's lack of preparedness for a public health crisis, as the country has struggled to manage acute shortages of PPE that all healthcare workers rely on to do their jobs, including those who provide senior care. Caregivers have made unprecedented sacrifices during this outbreak. At this time, we do have appropriate PPE (as defined by MDH and CDC) to provide care. However, we recognize there are state and national shortages. We have conservation efforts in place to avoid waste or unnecessary use

For those who have asked how they can help support seniors and caregivers, please continue to respect the access restrictions for our care center and assisted living buildings that are necessary to protect our most vulnerable residents. We know it's difficult for families during this time and we look forward to getting past this crisis so loved ones can be reunited in our facilities.

Continue to practice social distancing and follow the governor's directives. The more we can limit community transmission, the more we will protect vulnerable populations, including our seniors.

Lastly, I want to thank our community for the support they have shown our health system, through sewing masks, donation of PPE, as well as respecting visitor restrictions and providing 'virtual' emotional support to our residents, tenants, clients and staff. We are truly blessed to be part of local communities that support our health system in such an inspirational way.

Physicians remind not to delay urgent care

From Keith Stelter, MD President of Minnesota Medical Association

With all eyes on the COVID-19 pandemic, the Minnesota Medical Association (MMA) and its 10,000 members want to remind Minnesotans to pay attention to all aspects of their health.

"These days it's hard to focus on anything else but COVID-19," says MMA President Keith Stelter, MD. "But, don't disregard other health conditions or concerns. If you have diabetes, high blood pressure, congestive heart failure or other acute or chronic conditions, don't ignore them. Continue to take your medications and reach out to your doctor by phone or e-visit options. Your doctor or clinic will contact you if a face-to-face visit is necessarv. And those with serious health concerns should not be afraid to seek care or go to an emergency room, if needed.

Otherwise, Minnesotans should continue to stay at home, the MMA advises. We applaud Gov. Walz's decision to extend until May 4, Minnesota's stay-at-home order," Stelter says. "This additional time will give Minnesota's health system more time to prepare for those patients who will experience serious complications from COVID-19. The stay-at-home extension does not mean, however, that other health needs or concerns should be ignored."

Stelter encourages Minnesotans to keep exercising, while maintaining a six-foot buffer. "A walk or run or bike ride are great ways to stay active. You should also consider developing stress-reduction strategies such as meditation or yoga or other spiritual practices," he says.

Unfortunately, with sheltering in place practices, the risk of violence may increase, particularly for intimate partners or children. "These are stressful times," Stelter says. "If you need help coping, reach out to a professional. If you know someone who might be going through a crisis, reach out to them.

For a list of adult crisis hotlines in Minnesota, visit https://mn.gov/dhs/people-we-serve/adults/health-care/mentalhealth/resources/crisis-contacts.jsp. For children's crisis hotlines, visit https:// mn.gov/dhs/people-we-serve/peoplewith-disabilities/health-care/childrensmental-health/resources/crisis-contacts.

Finally, Stelter says Minnesotans need to continue the basic, but very important, habits such as washing their hands thoroughly and frequently, cleaning hightouch surfaces frequently, and refraining from touching their face and wearing a mask in public spaces if you feel comfortable doing so.

"Be a good citizen," Stelter says. "Be kind to others. Your actions make a difference. Stay safe, stay home, stay well. We will get through this together."

Congress needs to support local news

By Dean Riding, CEO America's Newspapers

protection.

During this coronavirus pandemic, access to accurate and trustworthy information in your community is as critical to life under quarantine and as sought after as hand sanitizer and face masks. Your local newspaper provides the news and information unique to your community. Where are the testing sites and who's eligible, which businesses are open, what is the local online unemployment benefit application process and much

But your access to local news and information is gravely threatened by the economic carnage COVID-19 has wrought. While local newspapers continue to field reporters and bring news and advice from public health authorities in print and online at considerable cost, their revenues have all but disappeared as the businesses that were their most important advertisers were shuttered. That's why America's Newspapers and other organizations representing local news providers are asking Congress to take urgent action to ensure you don't lose your vital sources of timely and trustworthy information.

ESSENTIAL ITEMS DURING A PANDEMIC SOAP A NEWSPAPER SUBSCRIPTION HAND SANITIZER infusion that is tied to the First, we're asking that Congress expand and clarify the Payroll Protection Program to ensure it covers all local newspapers and news broadcasters. While some of these outlets may be owned by large organizations, they must survive on their own. It's only fair that they should be included in any expansion of the program. These loans will keep the newspaper employees, your neighbors on their payrolls and help get the news to you in print as well as online. We appreciate the bipartisan letter of April 19, from U.S. Senators Maria Cantwell (D-WA), John Kennedy (R-LA), Amy Klobuchar (D-MN) and John Boozman (R-AR) that requested waiving the Small Business Administration's (SBA) affiliation rule to allow local media outlets to access funding, pointing to the critical role these outlets play in keeping communities healthy and informed.

Second, we are asking that the Trump Administration direct current federal government advertising funds to local news and media outlets. These public service and informative ads could be similar to the ones running right now about the U.S. Census. They could carry critical government information about data from the CDC, access to small business loans, medical resources for families and other important topics. We're asking for a commitment that would be spent in an equitable manner across all local news providers. We also believe that there should be an immediate relief package that is based on total newsroom employees. Some local news organizations won't survive without some type of immediate grant or organization's employees who directly work in the newsroom.

This is not a demand for an industry bailout by local news providers. Instead, these measures recognize that local news publishers are on the information front line of the coronavirus pandemic, providing a public service vital to keeping our communities safe, secure and sustained during this unprecedented public health crisis.

Contact the offices of your senators and representatives in the U.S. Congress and tell them you support expanding the Payroll Protection Program to include your local news source and that the federal government should use your local newspapers or news broadcaster to convey important information through public service

And finally, let them know that a grant based on newsroom employees is critical at this time. Visit www.usa.gov/electedofficials for their contact information. Take this easy action to ensure that your access to local information doesn't become another victim to the COVID-19 pandemic. Thank you and may you and your family remain safe and informed during this difficult time. On behalf of its approximately 1,500 newspaper and associate member companies, America's Newspapers is committed to explaining, defending and advancing the vital role of newspapers in democracy and civil life. We put an emphasis on educating the public on all the ways newspapers contribute to building a community identity and the success of local businesses. Learn more: at www.newspapers.org.

"I Love the Lord because..."

Check with your church to be up-to-date on service options.

Most are adapting to remote services.

Pastor Carl Larson, Faith Lutheran Church, Staples

"I love the Lord, because He has heard my voice and my supplications. Because He inclined His ear to me, therefore I will call on Him as long as I live. The snares of death encompassed me; the pangs of Sheol laid hold on me; I suffered distress and anguish. Then I called on the name of the Lord: 'O Lord, I pray, save my life!"" -Psalm 116: 1-4

As I am writing this devotion for the Staples World, I am also looking out my window from my office and can see the beauty of a wonderful Spring day. The trees are swaying in the slight Earth Day breeze, the birds are active as they work to prepare for the day's events, and the sun is brilliant as the clouds are few. It is a wonderful day, and yet the COVID threat creates a darkness over this day as it has for the past six weeks. Because, even though it's not part of the windowed menagerie, it is out there as all of the many sources continue to remind us.

But I love this psalm because it serves as a reminder that although the "sorrows of illness and death", are present, there is also a picture God the Father inclining His ear toward us to hear the cry of the hurting. God is listening with such intensity, that He knows that His children are crying out in their sickness, sorrow and suffering.

Over the past few weeks, as I've watched and listened to the heroic stories about the many in the medical field, the first responders, the police and fire department personnel, those that work at making sure that we have food, and so many others that have put themselves at risk for the other, it's as if I'm witnessing the Easter compassion of the One that was willing to give His life for us all. The care and compassion for the other allows us to see what can be, and, like the writer of Psalm 116, it is then that we should offer our thanks to God.

"What shall I return to the Lord for all his bounty to me? I will lift up the cup of salvation and call on the name of the Lord, I will pay my vows to the Lord in the presence of all His people. Praise the Lord!" -Psalm 116:12

CLC to hold virtual graduation ceremony

Central Lakes College Class of 2020 will graduate online at both of their cam-

The Staples campus ceremony will be held Wednesday, May 13, at 7 p.m. and the Brainerd campus will be Thursday, May 14. The career and technical graduates will be at 6 p.m. and liberal arts/nursing at 7

Both graduations will be online through a video feed on the CLC website (clcmn.edu) and Facebook.

The change is due to the COVID-19 (coronavirus).

"The health and safety of students, faculty and staff is our number one priority," according to a CLC press release, "the virtual format will allow everyone to participate without any health risk."

Any graduate who would rather walk across the stage in a physical ceremony may wait and participate in the next live graduation, either fall 2020 or spring 2021.

Graduates can participate in the online ceremony by registering and submitting their graduate photos by April 29. The form can be found at http://www. clcmn.edu/registration/ graduation.

Mary Siers

Mary Fay Siers, 87 passed away April 20, 2020, in Wisconsin Dells, WI.

Fay was born June 8, 1932, to George and Mary (Denton) DeWald of Staples. Fay spent her early years on the family farm learning to fish and swim in the beautiful waters of the Crow Wing River, right outside her door.

Fay attended school in Staples and graduated from Staples High School in 1950. After school, she worked at the Red Owl. She met a handsome man named Harry Siers at a dance. Harry enlisted in the U.S. Army and served in Korea. Upon his return to the states, Fay and Harry were married. They moved to the Iron Range, where Harry worked in the mines and Fay made a home, where they raised their two children, Kevin and Georgia. Fay also did foster care in their home on a small lake outside Biwabik.

Fay was a feisty force to be reckoned with, working hard all her life, mixing a great drink at the Moose Club, opening an exercise studioand working as a CNA at the hospital in Aurora. She always found time for the other things she loved; reading a good mystery or romance novel, listening to her favorite classic country singers and playing rollicking games of cards with friends or family. Fay made any place she lived into a home, with personal touches and a warm feeling. She loved nothing more than having all her family gathered around, especially at the

After retirement, Fay and Harry lived in several areas of Minnesota, including Brainerd, Verndale and Wadena. In 2017, Fay moved to Wisconsin Dells to be closer to her daughter Georgia. In her last years, Fay was well cared for by the kind staff at Our House Memory Care Center and Heartland Hospice Ser-

She is survived by one son, Kevin (Jean) of Charlotte, NC and one daughter. Georgia (Michael) Press of Wisconsin Dells, WI; one sister, Kay Leinen of Woodbury; three grandchildren she absolutely adored: Jeff (Diana) Press of Portland, OR, Hazel (Samantha) Press of Madison, WI and Michael (Angela) Siers of Baltimore, MD.

Fay was preceded in death by her parents and her husband.

A private service will be held at a later date. Memorials may be made to Heartland Hospice of Wisconsin (2801 Crossroads Drive, #2000, Madison, WI 53718).

The Farber Funeral Home, Reedsburg, WI, is assisting the family.

Larry Godejohn

Larry Godejohn, 74, of Cushing went to be with the Lord on April 24, 2020.

A private service will be held and a Celebration of Life will be planned for a later date.

Larry was born November 10, 1945 to Theodore and Eulalia Godejohn. He grew up outside of Erie, North Dakota, learning to love all things outdoors and playing sports. He graduated from the University of North Dakota, where he studied accounting and met his wife, Shirley. He and Shirley were married in 1967. He served in the U.S. Army and was a successful entrepreneur, having owned and operated Staples Sports, with Shirley, from 1983 to 2019. He loved fishing, hunting and traveling the world; including the completion of the "Great Loop" - circumnavigating the USA by water. He was a member of a New Orleans Mardi Gras organization and enjoyed riding in the parades. He is survived by his wife, Shirley; three daughters, Angie Godejohn; Nicole (Eric) Baird; Tani (Tyler) Johnson: three grandsons, Alex Godejohn; Camden and Crosby Johnson: one brother Orvin (Janet) Godejohn and one sister, Donna Godejohn.

He is preceded in death by his parents and one sister, Carol Godejohn.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in Larry's honor directly to Motley United Methodist Church Memorial Fund or to Scandia Valley First Response. Arrangements were by Halvorson Taylor Funeral Home, www.halvorsontaylor.com.

Construction not stopped by COVID-19

By Dawn Timbs Staples World reporter

The sounds and sights of backhoes, excavators and other heavy equipment for construction projects still appear to be prevalent throughout area, despite the coronavirus pandemic.

"Right now we're still really busy," said Shawn Jordahl, of Jordahl Concrete & Masonry in Motley, adding that he was "fairly optimistic" about things.

Jordahl went on to say that some of their projects have been put on hold, but they've been finishing those jobs that were started before the onset of COVID-19. Because of the uncertainty of the coronavirus situation, he may be more concerned at the latter part of the year, Jordahl said.

In addition to construction projects continuing on, Jordahl said they've been real busy at Jordahl Hardware in Motley, the business he owns with his wife, Stephanie. "People aren't going out of town, so there's more local shopping, which has been great."

Central Building Supply in Staples, owned by Jeremy Reeck, also shared a positive report. "Everything's going well...we're cooking along," said Tim Nieminen, who works in the Sales and Estimating department.

Current projects taking place in the City of Staples include the construction of a new wastewater treatment plant and a new roof being installed at the community center. In addition to those city projects, the new Mill Townhomes, near Michigan Ave. and 12th St. NW, are in full swing and are estimated to be completed by the end of the

Just prior to the onset of COVID-19, NAPA Auto Parts of Staples finished a major remodel of their new store, located at the old Ernie's Grocery building along Hwy 10. A ribbon cutting ceremony is expected to take place sometime this spring.

In the City of Motley, construction of the new Holiday station (formerly Orton's BP) is now complete and a major remodel is in the works at the former Northwind Grocery, which has been sold and will soon be home to BBQ Smokehouse Plus, owned by Tyler and Kari Ehrmantraut. Construction is still taking place as well at the new pavilion at Converse time this fall. K & S Construction of Dent is the general contractor. The 42-unit townhome project is developed and owned by Central Minnesota Housing Partnership, Inc., and will provide affordable housing for families and individuals. (Staples World photo by Dawn Timbs)

School board reviews distance learning

By Mark Anderson Managing Editor

The Staples-Motley school board held their April 20 meeting online, with all board members using the Zoom application to communicate.

Superintendent Shane Tappe said the district is now in their fourth week of distance learning. "The staff have done a great job, it is vitally important to continue to educate kids," said Tappe. "The common theme is we continue to miss our kids."

The weekly report from Staples-Motley Elementary Principal Kathy Johnson said "Teachers are connecting and interacting with students daily, they are doing an amazing job of supporting and encouraging active learning in all grade levels and disciplines."

Johnson said she is hosting a weekly zoom meeting with all faculty. Meanwhile, school counselors are supporting families and teachers to make sure social emotional needs are being met and paraprofessionals are supporting with child care, food service, curriculum support, cleaning and office coverage.

Middle School Principal Jon Regan's report noted that paraprofessionals are assisting in preparation and delivery of over 1,600 meals a day. "Our students are loving seeing our staff delivering these," said Regan.

Regan said Deb Otteson is organizing the distribution of all the school work from the middle school and high school that's delivered every Tuesday.

High School Principal Mike Schmidt's report stated "the teamwork demonstrated on a daily basis is remarkable." He said the staff have "reinvented themselves in regards to daily structure, organization, time, lessons, support, networking, relationships, content and creative compromise."

Tappe said the school will continue with budget reductions, much of it done through attrition of staff leaving or retiring. "We will continue to adjust accordingly," said Tappe.

In other news, the board

• Learned that the Community Education Summer Rec booklet and class offerings is on hold until there is a better outlook on what activities will look like.

• Approved unpaid leave for four employees who requested leave because of COVID-19 related causes. The employees could be in a high risk category or caring for someone in a high risk category.

• Accepted resignation of Cory Asfeld, physical education and track and field coach, effective June

• Accepted resignation of John Regan as middle school principal and approved hiring of Regan as director of finance.

• Approved FMLA request from Rebecca Rapaway

• Approved non-renewal of probationary teacher Darla Davis.

• Approved Alternative Teacher Professional Pay System (QCOMP) for 2020-

More masks being made for Lakewood

Paraprofessionals at Staples-Motley Schools have been busy making masks for staff at Lakewood Health System in Staples. As of April 21, they had made over 380 masks. They work as a team, with some cutting material, some ironing and others sewing. The women hope to make at least 500 - 1,000 masks and will keep making them until the end of the school year, as Lakewood is in need of many more.

sha Pedden; and ironers Val Murray (standing) and Cathy Dumpprope, who headed up this project at the school. Pedden, who is modeling one of the finished masks, said she is grateful to be a part of a group like this as it took her two hours to sew one mask by herself at home. Achermann signs with U of M Crookston nesota Crookston women's tennis program announced the addition of Staples-Motley tennis player Tasha Achermann to their signing class.

'Tasha brings familiarity to the program, as she was a high school teammate of Ashley Smith and will add depth and competitiveness to our team," said Head Coach Krayton Nash.

Minnesota Crookston has continued to improve under Coach Nash in three seasons. The Golden Eagles have a strong core returning.

Every passionate angler is eager for that first opportunity to get a fishing rod in the hand, with a lure or a baited hook on the end of the line and a chance to catch those first fish of the year. It was not more than a day after ice-out here at the Peterson, Allen and Cichos. ing boat was seen throwing up a geyser of spray as its occupant headed, my guess, anyway for a spot where crappies might be biting. He - 0 eventually Inside the motored Outdoors

Stream trout present such an early opportunity.

fish vying for escape.

While some streams in Southeast Minnesota are open year 'round, inland streams elsewhere in the state open in mid-April. It's not back-trolling or pitching lures from a boat or following a depth contour or watching your boat's electronics for blips that pinpoint fish. Instead, "hoofing it" along a stream's meandering banks, often wading into the same watery environment with the brook, rainbow or brown trout. Some anglers fish these places only until the general fishing opener. Others are drawn to them often during the five-and-onehalf month open season, at least when stream flow is good and the prospect of catching fish is fair or better. It's a nice alternative to the confines of a fishing boat, and with solitude pretty much guaranteed a break from the traffic on popular lakes.

Sometimes you can learn new things, and relearn things you know but sometimes forget. Things like how to handle a good fish that you really want to see in the net, even though it's a certainty that you will release it once you have caught it and "counted coup.

Sometimes the learning or re-learning can come from failure. The famous, some might say infamous college basketball coach Bob Knight of Indiana Uni-lesson from one that got away versity was once quoted as saying that, "a good loser is probably someone who downstream. has had too much practice at it." A less verifiable ver-

> 'all you learn from losing is how to lose.'

> I'm not convinced that's true. You can sometimes learn as much or more from falling as from succeeding, from missing as much as from hitting or from losing as much as from catching. For instance, I'm likely to remember every detail when I miss a shot at a duck and know just why I missed it, whereas in the adrenaline rush of a successful shot, the details seem to evaporate in the excitement of the moment: for me, at least.

> sion of that quote is that

The same can be said of some fishing episodes. On the Monday, after the trout season's April 18, opener, and expecting to have the stream mostly to myself I made the short drive to a local trout stream that's both a favorite of mine. and coincidentally, well within the boundaries of the Stay Home Minnesota pandemic sheltering advice.

After more than seven months, it was good to feel the push of flowing water against my waders, while remembering the caution needed to balance on slippery rocks. The water was clear, its depth just what those of us who fish it find ideal. After some preliminaries, I decided on casting a lure of feathers and deer hair and gold tinsel, designed and tied to resemble a small minnow.

Time's passage can get lost in angling concentration, but within a relatively short time I had hooked, played and landed a pair of brook trout and a small brown trout. Both are residents here, both reproduce naturally, which provides the very best kind of trout fishing challenge.

I moved farther downstream, casting my minnow imitation across the stream, letting it swing in a crossing arc with the pull of the current. It was almost directly downstream when my rod tip dipped sharply downward. A strong current can fool you into thinking you've hooked a good fish, but it was soon evident that this in fact was a good fish.

I was not in the best position, with the fish directly

When vou're downstream of, or below a fish that is trying to pull away from you, your lure is pulled into a stronger hooking position. When the fish is directly downstream, you are potentially pulling your fly or lure out of its mouth. I tried to work carefully but quickly downstream to get below it, while the fish used the current to resist, and seemed intent on breaking over the lip of the pool and into faster water below.

Instead of letting the fish "have its head" and go downstream, eventually into calmer water, I resisted the combined pull of the fish and the current, determined to settle the outcome quickly. The acrobatic fish was contorting nearly into complete circles, showing a broad flank and enough color to confirm that it was a good brown trout; easily a fish worthy of early season bragging.

Then one more convulsion from the fish and the line pulled free and went slack. The fish was off, and though profanity is not a constant in my vocabulary I just might have cursed. Losing the best fish of the day has a way of diminishing those that came before it, but at the same time posing the question "What can top this?"

Inevitably, you ask yourself "What could I have done differently to avoid losing the fish?" Sometimes nothing. Other times, a better fight plan. Looking back, I might not have resisted the fish so much, adding the current's muscle to its own. I might not have worried so much about it leaving the pool for the turbulent water below, where there is a broader pool where I might have had more leverage.

You never know, of course. The hold of the hook might have given way no matter what. But I could have handled it better to improve my chances of landing the fish. Some might say "You were going to release it, anyway; what's the big deal?" A serious angler knows the answer to that question. And just might learn from losing.

April 28, 2020

Dear Families,

With the governor's announcement that distance learning will continue through the end of the school year, we have made a few updates to our district distance learning plan and district calendar to finish well in this unprecedented season of education. Please take a moment to read through the details below so we can partner together for success through the end of the school year.

• The calendar for distance learning will look as follows:

April 28	Distance Learning Delivery Day
May 1	State-Mandated Planning Day - No Distance Learning
May 4	State-Mandated Planning Day - No Distance Learning
May 5	Distance Learning Delivery Day
May 12	Distance Learning Delivery Day
May 18-22	Last Week Items: -End of year wrap-up for students -Collection of school-owned materials/equipment -Communication with families regarding transitions and registration for the upcoming school year.

- The Minnesota State High School League has officially cancelled the remainder of all participating schools spring athletics and fine arts seasons, effective immediately.
- Staples-Motley Community Education classes and programs remain suspended until further notice. More information will be provided as it becomes available.
- Student meals for any child age eighteen and under will continue to be available through May 22nd. Meals are distributed Monday-Friday, with Friday distribution of weekend meals. Please call Lori at 218-894-5400 x3120 to sign up for meals for your child. Information regarding the summer food program will come at a later date.

Thank you for your hard work stepping in and working on distance learning. We'll continue to communicate with you regarding these final weeks of the school year to make sure all students finish the 2019-2020 school year well.

It is a pleasure to serve your families,
