Entrepreneur conference coming to Staples

The city of Staples has been approved to host the Connecting Entrepreneurial Communities conference Sept. 10-11. The conference is sponsored by the University of Minnesota Extension and pulls together entrepreneurs for two days of learning about opportunities.

The conference has a unique format in which breakout sessions are held in different buildings around the community, and attendees are encouraged to walk around the town.

The application to host the conference was submitted by Staples Economic Development Director Melissa Radermacher and LEAP Marketing Coordinator Renee Kroll.

The event was discussed at the Staples Economic Development Authority meeting on Jan. 28. Radermacher said "This will be a chance to promote what we have and what we don't have." She gave an example of doing a vacant building tour during the conference. "Maybe some entrepreneurs could come and see the space we have and find a way to fill it."

Mayor Chris Etzler said while this is a great opportunity for Staples, the city has the capacity to host more events. "This is something we can start to do, throw our name in the hat to do more of this kind of thing."

Local connection to NBC Dateline's upcoming show

Kyra (Odden) Quast (above left) of Staples is pictured with Keith Morrison (center) correspondent for Dateline NBC; and Cheryl (Vallow) Wheeler of Austin, Texas, at the NBC studio in New York City, following the taping of a two-hour episode scheduled to air Friday, Feb. 14. Quast shared that the episode is diving into the unbelievable story about the deaths of Charles Vallow (her long-time friend) and others, and two children who have been missing since September of 2019. "Charles Vallow was a friend that I met over 30 years ago in Texas," Quast shared via text. "He and Cheryl were married not long after I met Charles. We were the best of friends and we were very involved in each other's lives," she said, adding that their children were about the same age. Charles and Cheryl later divorced, but remained on good terms. On July 11, 2019, Charles was murdered, allegedly by his brotherin-law of current estranged wife, Lori. This event started a trail of bizarre events, including more deaths and the two missing children mentioned above: seven-year-old J. J. Vallow and 17-year-old Tylee Ryan. Quast, who offered resources, legal guidance and support for Cheryl, was flown out to New York City by NBC. Stomping Grounds recognized on KSTP

The Stomping Grounds in Staples was recently selected as one of the five best coffee shops in Minnesota by Mike Marcotte, senior producer of KSTP television's 'Twin Cities Live' and 'Give Me the Mike,' Exploring Minnesota and Beyond. Marcotte noted that after counting thousands of votes, he visited the spots selected as the five best coffee shops in Minnesota.

Lindsey Hirschey, owner of Stomping Grounds, said she was shocked when she received the message from Marcotte that her shop in Staples was one of the top five. Marcotte and his crew visited the Stomping Grounds on Jan. 25. Marcotte ordered the lced Toasted Salted Caramel Latte; and his colleague, the iced Nutty Irish Latte. In addition to enjoying their drinks, Marcotte was complimentary of the space itself, with its bright, inspiring colors and unique decorations, including a bicycle that's mounted on the wall along with a net filled with vintage coffee cans.

Hirschey noted there were 213 coffee shops that had received votes, many of them in urban areas, so she was very honored to have been among the top five. The other four coffee shops Marcotte visited included Nest in Perham; StoneHouse Coffee and Roastery in Nisswa; The Mocha Monkey in Waconia; and Irish Blessings Coffeehouse in Maple Lake. Batcher Block funding proposal gaining steam

Renovation of the Batcher Block Opera House was included in a list of recommended funding for the upcoming state bonding bill. The bonding bill still has to go through the state senate and house of representatives before any funding is approved, but Staples Economic Development Director Melissa Radermacher said "This is one more step in the right direction."

Representatives of Gov. Tim Walz visited the building in August, as did members of the house of representatives.

Radermacher discussed the progress of the Batcher Block proposal. The Minneapolis Star-Tribune wrote a story about the building in early January, which she said was another positive step. "The writer fell in love with Staples," said Radermacher, "He wanted to come back and do more stories about Staples, not just the Batcher Block."

Impact analysis

Also at the EDA meeting, Radermacher presented a study completed by the University of Minnesota that projected the potential economic impact the Batcher Block Opera House could have on the area.

The study found that operations could generate $1.7 million annually in the region.

"The numbers only reflect people coming into the community, not local people," said Radermacher. "The ripple effects throughout the community could be even bigger than that."

By Karin L. Nauber

The annual reports presented by Todd County Development Corporation (TCDC) Director Rick Utech are always told with a positive flair.

This year's report was no different. It really was quite positive after the last two years' reports that talked of job losses due to the closing of LSC Communications (formerly R.R. Donnelly/Banta/Harts Press) in Long Prairie.

According to Utech, in late October 2018, Quad Graphics of Wisconsin signed a purchase agreement for the LSC Communications facility.

Soon after, a federal anti-trust lawsuit was filed for monopoly reasons, preventing the sale.

The three largest magazine printers in the U.S. at the time were R.R. Donnelly, Quad Graphics and LSC Communications. After exhausting all avenues, the purchase agreement was ended in late July of 2019.

Then in late October of 2019, TCDC was approached by an investor group from Alexandria about the facility. This led to a purchase agreement being signed. "TCDC has worked with the city of Long Prairie and the Minnesota Department of Employment and Economic Development (DEED) to help assist a new business targeted for the facility. DEED programs were evaluated included the job creation fund, workforce training and Minnesota Investment Fund (MIF)," shared Utech with the commissioners. The new business, Enterprise CP, is a pasta packaging company currently utilizing the former K-Mart building in Alexandria.

$700-$900 a month range. According to Utech, the Additionally, TCDC company has been busy for the past week moving equipment into the buildworked with the City of Grey Eagle on potential workforce housing. Utech said that they held a series of eight workshops for business succession planning in September and October of 2019. The presentations were provided by professionals in the subject area, which included a succession planner, an attorney, a Certified Public Accountant (CPA) and a financial advisor.

An update of the Consolidated Telephone Company (CTC) work within the county was also highlighted in his report.

He said that TCDC participated in the May 20, 2019, ground breaking ceremony celebrating the $2,147,863 USDA Rural Utilities grant awarded for the Moran Township area in late 2018. TCDC continues to help implementing the grant that will be used to construct fiber broadband to businesses and residents.

"TCDC also provided support as needed to West Central Telephone Association for their Broadband Fiber projects in Villard and Staples Townships. Upon completion, recipients of this broadband service will have the opportunity to receive up to $\overline{1}$ Gig up-load/1 Gig download service," added Utech. Utech shared that the TCDC Revolving Loan Fund (RLF) approved one loan of \$12,000 in 2019 to assist a business start-up. He added that since 2012, the TCDC RLF has provided \$427,400 in business assistance loans and leveraged \$1,981,000 in other financing for nine different projects in Todd County. Total RLF assets for the year ending 2019 equaled \$245,171.09, up 1.8 percent from 2018 and up 217 percent from the original RLF start-up of \$113,000.

Sourcewell Manager of Community Solutions Anna Gruber said the Innoteamwork on projects that might not otherwise come to fruition.

"Through the Innovation Funding process, Sourcewell is able to give back to our communities in ways beyond our imagination," Gruber said. "We've seen projects like a regional food cooperative, WIFI on public transportation, and a region-wide mental health initiative come to life. It's a wonderful way to collaborate with organizations throughout our region to do great things."

The 2020 Innovation Funding application process for local governments and nonprofits is open now

They officially signed the sale contract on January 24.

3) Forty one hours of financial, marketing and other business training for 2019.

Utech also touched on the affordable housing projects they have been working on in the county.

He said that TCDC continued working with a developer and local manufacturing company on a proposed 37-unit market rate housing project in Long Prairie. An application to Minnesota Housing Finance was submitted as part of the finance package, which will help reduce the market rates for our workforce.

He said they are hoping to have rental units in the Community center plans on fees, more programming

By Mark Anderson Managing Editor

The City of Staples has been looking at new ways to make up revenue lost after the Staples-Motley School Board pulled out of the funding agreement that had been used in previous year.

At the Jan. 28 Staples City Council meeting, Community Center Director Tricia Jasmer showed the council some of the results of the planning. The community center has already increased membership fees and service fees for people who live outside the city limits, and the new plan could transfer the entire building to a fee-based facility in which no entry would be allowed without a membership or entry fee.

The ideas in the plan also calls for more programming, such as day camps, summer camps dodge ball leagues, pool events, water yoga fitness classes, craft sales and indoor garage sales. The center would also offer swimming lessons during the school year.

Other revenue ideas include a local sales tax and a revenue campaign. City Administrator Jerel Nelsen said many other communities use a sales tax to finance their local community centers. The revenue campaign would raise money for specific features of the community center.

Mayor Chris Etzler said most cities have a sales tax that buyers don't usually notice. "All these communities around us are doing it, we are paying it in Brainerd and Baxter, this is a way to get some of that back to us instead of us giving it to them all the time."

Board member Mary Theurer asked if the new plans would cut into the senior meals and senior activities currently going on at the community center. Jasmer said activities like day camps could eliminate senior activities.

The board gave no specific direction but seemed to be in favor of many of the programming proposals.

"We are looking for feedback on this and for any other ideas," said Nelsen. "What type of facility do we want to be?

In other news the council

 Approved solid waste hauler licenses for G&T Sanitation, Long Prairie Sanitation and Waste Management. Council member Mary Theurer said the $100 license fee is a small amount "for what they do to our alleys and everything.'

Hope for Opera House

Radermacher said a committee is started to start the nonprofit entity that will be in charge of the Batcher Opera House operations if the funding is approved. She said the nonprofit will look at funding mechanisms and she has already heard that the board at the Ordway Theatre in Minneapolis had an interest in helping out.

Mayor Chris Etzler said outside fundraising will be necessary to get the estimated $8.5 million needed to complete the project."Getting big dollar commitments would show that the project isn't just local," he said.

Monica Johnson recalled that this was the 'Welcome Home' event at the Staples-Motley High School gym following the state basketball tournament at which the boys placed fourth. She also correctly identified all but one of the boys, going on to mention that Shannon (Joe) Webster is her son and she followed the Cardinal basketball team all through his high school years. Alex Griffith correctly identified all and mentioned that he coached 7th grade basketball for a few years, so had coached most of these guys a few years before this photo was taken. Josh Winter of Staples (SMHS Class of 2002 and a member of the Cardinal basketball team that year) correctly identified all. Kevin Roline of Nevis correctly identified all but one, noting that it was the state basketball tournament. Both Johnson and Roline identified Wade Christensen as Chad Christensen. Yes, there is a precinct caucus this year

With all the talk of Minnesota's first primary in recent memory, many people are under the assumption that there will not be a precinct caucus. That is not the case.

The precinct caucus remains the place to take the first step to get involved politically in the community. It provides an opportunity to meet neighbors and talk about issues one thinks are important in the community, state and nation.

The caucus also remains the place where individuals run to become a delegate to have a voice in the candidate selection process at the county, legislative and congressional district, state and national levels.

О

If you are not sure where your precinct caucus will take place, the Minnesota Secretary of State's Office provides specific locations at http://caucusfinder.sos. state.mn.us/

Cost of insulin shouldn't be cause of death

By Governor Tim Walz and Speaker of the House Melissa Hortman

There's a bright, young woman at Concordia University, in St. Paul named Alexis Stanley. Certain fears are typical for a college student like Alexis: "Will I pass my chemistry midterm? Will I land that internship? What will I do after graduation?

But Alexis fears something no young person should: her 26th birthday. She has Type 1 diabetes and that date marks the moment when she will no longer be covered under her parent's health insurance. She fears what will happen if she is unable to afford the insulin she needs daily to stay alive.

Alexis's story is one we hear too often lin has tripled in the last 10 years leaving Minnesotans with diabetes scrambling to afford the drug they need to survive. Many are forced to ration their insulin to make it to the next paycheck or put food on the table for their family. That's why we fought hard last session for "Alec's Bill" to provide critical relief to Minnesotans struggling to afford insulin. The bill is named after a young diabetic from Minnesota whose story embodies Alexis's fear. Alec tragically died rationing his insulin when he aged off his mother's insurance and couldn't afford the $1,300 monthly cost of insulin and diabetes supplies.

the insulin they need at a price they can afford. The bill had broad bipartisan support in the Legislature last year, but died in the Republican-controlled Senate.

Since then, we've worked tirelessly to find a solution that Republicans are willing to support. We remain open to their ideas and eager for a bipartisan path forward. We even improved Alec's Bill by adding certain Republican proposals, including a program that would help Minnesotans afford insulin over the long-term. We have come close to reaching a deal.

But there's one area where Republicans simply will not budge: holding pharmaceutical companies accountable. The only way we can provide relief to Minnesotans struggling to afford their insulin is if we call upon the companies who created this crisis to help fund the solution. The insulin manufacturers and the lobbyists from Big Pharma don't like Alec's Bill and are doing everything in their power to stop it. They'd much rather have Minnesota taxpayers pick up the tab. Unfortunately, Republicans are right there with them. Alec Smith lost his life at 26 years old, the exact age Alexis dreads turning. We cannot allow Alexis to fall to the same tragic fate. We need to act now. Lives are at stake. We will reintroduce Alec's Bill this session. We are ready to act immediately. Our bill now includes Republicans' ideas and we can begin implementing it immediately but only if it passes the Republican led Senate. We ask Senate Republicans to do the right thing, let this common sense solution move forward, and provide muchneeded relief to Minnesotans struggling to afford their insulin.

Be your own Valentine

By Karen McGregor

pinion

Valentine's Day is just around the corner and we all have our feelings about it. If we're dating or (happily) married, we may be excited about the flowers. chocolates and candlelit dinners. If we're single, we may feel dissatisfied. sad or annoyed. (We may even retitle the holiday "Singles Awareness Day.") Either way, is our tendency to define love in terms of romance making us miss a much bigger picture?

I believe so. I have no issue with Valentine's Day itself, I just don't want us to let it trivialize what love actually is.

Whether you have a partner or not, don't fall into the trap of seeing love as something outside yourself. We're all born with love, in fact, it's our Divine Purpose, our reason for being here and it's the origin of all our power. It's what allows us to exert positive influence on those around us

When you reconnect with that primal power I call it "love-power" you unlock the door to a deeper, richer, more meaningful life. You become a heartdriven person who regularly uses your influence to not only improve your life but the lives of those around you.

You may not be used to thinking of power and influence in terms of love. That's because Western civilization views the mind (not the heart) as the source of power. But since intellect is intertwined with ego, love-based power often gets distorted, morphing into fear-based power. This causes us to seek to control others, to be passive-aggressive, to act like a victim, to engage in risky behaviors to feel special or noticed and more.

I believe the ancient wisdom of the 4,000-yearold Tao Te Ching can help us identify and break the "power patterns" that undermine our influence, create dysfunctional relationships, and otherwise squelch our potential.

When you're in pure love-power, you're happy, curious, in an unending state of awe. You're quick to forgive. You're wide open to other people and new opportunities. Everything about how you experience the world and how it experiences you shifts.

allow them to ebb and flow without getting emotionally hooked.

Successful meditation occurs when there is no war between your head and your heart. This state is one of the greatest gifts you can give yourself. If you've always 'meant' to try meditating but haven't yet done so, Valentine's Day is the perfect day to start.

Gift yourself a lovely journal. Journaling is a powerful practice that can help you get in better touch with your thoughts and feelings, recognize goals, enhance gratitude and pinpoint areas in your life that need work. Find a journal that speaks to you (pick a gorgeous one that inspires you to write). Then set aside some time alone (even just 10 minutes) to write each day.

· Journal to find gratitude. Write about your blessings until you see how abundant your life really is. Pause as you write to ensure that you really feel the state of gratitude.

• Journal to stay in the moment. When your mind is racing, journaling can help you return to the present. Make a small checkmark in your notebook or journal each time you're aware of not being in the holy moment of now. Note what took you out of presence.

· Journal about stillness in your life. When and where can you incorporate more stillness? When does your mind struggle to be still? Record how you feel after meditation or practicing gratitude daily for one week.

Sing and dance your way to gratitude. As mentioned, many people keep a gratitude journal. The problem is, it can turn into a mindless checklist that simply creates the illusion of gratitude. If that happens, try singing and dancing instead. In his book The Mastery of Love, Don Miguel Ruiz says this is a natural expression of our love-power-which is why little children sing and dance. They haven't yet developed the filters and fear that they'll be judged. You can dance and sing in the privacy of your room or as you clean your house. If you want to take it to the next level, consider signing up for a hip-hop or salsa class or joining a local choir. Get rid of something that isn't serving you. Often without realizing it, we clutter and complicate our lives with things that create chaos and drama. It can be anything from too much "stuff" in our homes, too many commitments, the wrong job or relationship. A great expression of self-love is to pinpoint something to purge. Do a closet clean out or a social media detox. Turn down a project. Draw a muchneeded boundary. Just take one step to simplify your life and free up your energy. Grieve losses and release pain with this heart exercise. This may not feel very Valentine-y, but when we're changing our life for the better, we must first release what was. Otherwise we'll get stuck and block the clarity we need to move forward. Pain can be released through the portal of the heart. When you focus on your heart, a desire to release the pain of the past may arise. Even better, your heart knows how to do that without your mind interrupting. Here's a simple exercise: Focus on the heart and allow the feelings of your past to present themselves.

Just allow the process to unfold. Allow your body to feel and release without letting your mind get hooked into the emotion, feeding the ego needs and magnifying your power patterns. When you put your attention on your heart, you may notice that it feels warm or even hot. That is a sign you are releasing stored emotional pain.

If you're single, stop searching for "the one." It's common to believe that there's one person out there who can finally see us for who we really are. But searching for our perfect match is a chase that's based on an illusion. I love romance, but I've come to believe that it's usually founded in the need to be special. People search for "the one" their entire lives, never escaping the constant craving for specialness. Never confuse love with specialness. Love supports a life of joy and love-power; "specialness" impedes it.

In that same vein, it's time to revisit the definition of "soul mate." Soul mates are actually not romantic partners but people destined to help vou grow by presenting you with challenging personality traits and actions vou don't like. This mind shift may defuse anger or defensiveness and help you change the dynamic with "difficult" people who cross your path.

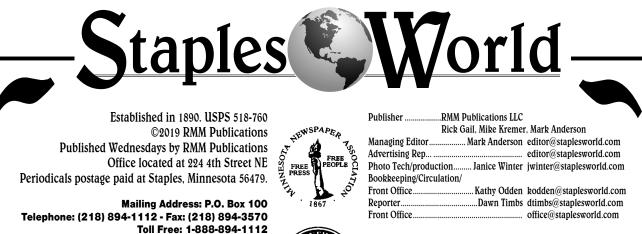

If you're in a romantic relationship, start working toward a cause you believe in, together. There is no greater calling for a romantic relationship than to create a better world. In fact, many millennials are moving in this direction.Rather than being absorbed by one another, they are breaking the old paradigm of romantic co-dependency and choosing instead to be inter-dependent, working together for causes that uplift humanity. This new paradigm of relationship lets people shift from a state of isolation within their own dramas, fears and wounds, which are experienced as they get to know their partner, to becoming a presence in the woria Talk with your partner and choose a project to participate in. Maybe arrange to visit an orphanage to play games with or tutor school children, or plan a fundraiser event to benefit the homeless. Think about the passions you both share and start there. You will be amazed by how deeply a project rooted in love-power can transform vour lives. While Valentine's Day is a good time to think about connecting to your lovepower, or even take a symbolic first step, it's actually a journey you take every day, all year long. Before you can bring your best self to all of your relationships, you must connect to love-power. Love-power is the key to unlocking your potential and opening your being to everything life has in store. It's how you provide clarity to those around you. It's how you join hearts with others to change the world.

Read on for some "light" and relatively simple things you can do on Valentine's Day and afterward to start reconnecting with your pure love-power.

Take a Valentine's Day meditation break. (It's the key to experiencing life in the holy moment of now.) Why should we meditate? Because it helps us detach from our preferences which trigger our need to be "right" or "in control" and lead to suffering and practice being in the present. Just set aside 15-20 minutes to sit quietly and focus on your breath. If your mind wanders, that's okay: The point is not to judge the thoughts that stream endlessly into your consciousness but to

Harold Moffett

Harold William Moffett, 88, of Sauk Rapids, formerly of Staples, died January 28, 2020 at Good Shepherd Senior Community in Sauk Rapids.

A memorial service was held at The Good Shepherd Chapel in Sauk Rapids on February 5.

Interment will be at the Thomastown Covenant Church Cemetery in Staples at a later date.

Harold was born October 14, 1931 in Minneapolis, the eldest son of Harold and Gladys Moffett. He was raised and educated in Minneapolis, graduating from Central High and earning a secondary degree at night school. He was an accomplished athlete in high school and most of his adult life. He played both tennis and basketball with teams that went to state. He married Joyce Johnson on Feb. 24, 1951, at Aldrich Avenue Presbyterian Church, Minneapolis. Soon thereafter he joined the U.S. Army and was stationed in Vienna, Austria. Joyce joined him for a portion of that time and their experience overseas was a lifelong joy for them. Harold played on the Army's international basketball team, allowing him to travel and play a game he loved.

Harold spent his business career in the clothing manufacturing industry working for Munsingwear, Van Heusen, Gladding and others before starting his own business, Pine County, which he operated for nearly 20 years in both Perham and Staples. He was known for treating people with respect and dignity. Harold spent his life pursuing and deepening his faith in Christ, with the love of his life, wife. Jovce. Wherever they lived they were active participants and members of their local churches, most recently Thomastown Covenant in Staples. Harold was known for his generous and competitive spirit and sense of humor. He enjoyed teaching youth group, playing sports, singing, occasionally preaching and writing, dressing up as Santa for the neighborhood and performing skits with friends. He always took time to listen attentively. His sons gently teased him as the "Grand Inquisitor" as he had a remarkable gift of asking questions and being truly interested in others- no matter their age, status or personal relationship. When Harold asked a question, he listened, because he wanted to know about you and treated you as a person of value. Those who knew him well, knew of his devotion to his wife, his love of Jesus, pride in his children and grandchildren, his athletic abilities, business success and broad sense of humor. His impact was profound and in many ways eternal. He is now smiling and singing praises with Joyce in a place made just for them. He will be greatly missed. Harold is survived by three sons, David (Babs) Moffett, Bemidji, Michael (Beth) Moffett, St Cloud, and Mark (Donna) Moffett, Bloomington; eight grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren. Harold was preceded in death by his parents; wife; one daughter, Becky and one sister, Doris.

"I Can Believe the Bible"

Submitted by Pastor Roy Miles, Staples Assembly of God Church

-Article Written by R. C. Cunningham

Most of us believe the Bible simply because we were taught to do so. We need to be ready to give a better reason for our faith (1 Peter 3:15). Actually there are many good reasons

It Is Authentic. Two centuries ago the eminent scholar, Sir Isaac Newton, said, "There are more sure marks of authenticity in the Bible than in any profane history," and modern research bears this out.

Textual proof. Whereas 1,500 years after Herodotus wrote his history there was only one copy of it, and 1,200 years after Plato wrote his book there was only one copy of it, God was so careful to preserve His Word that we have thousands of ancient manuscripts. Among these are the Dead Sea Scrolls discovered in 1947. The Dead Sea Scrolls include a complete Book of Isaiah dating from 100 years before Christ, and there is no significant difference between its wording and the wording of today's Hebrew text.

Archaeological proof. The more ancient history is uncovered, the more the Bible is corroborated.

 Evil men would never write a Book that condemns them to eternal punishment for their sin.

 Good men would never write one that was not true. God inspired men to write it (2 Timothy 3:16).

It Has Survived

"The grass withereth, the flower fadeth: but the word of our God shall stand forever" (Isaiah 40:8).

Evil men like the Roman emperor Diocletian (A.D. 303) have tried to wipe out the Bible and failed. Skeptics like Voltaire and Thomas Paine have attacked it in vain.

•Millions in every generation have trusted the Bible and found it works

•More copies of the Bible exist today than of any other book

It Is Proven True. "Thy word is truth" (John 17:17)

Internal evidence. The Bible contains 66 books written by 40 different authors over a period of 1,500 years. The authors came from various backgrounds and wrote in various languages, yet the Book has a marvelous unity. It is one Unfolding story of man's fall and redemption through Christ.

External evidence. Fulfilled prophecies prove the Bible is true. One example is the 333 details in the predictions concerning the life of Christ. All those details were fulfilled, and the odds that this could happen are so great as to be astronomical

It Is Profitable

"Useful for teaching the faith and correcting error, for resetting the direction of a man's life and training him in good living" (2 Timothy 3:16, Phillips).

•Illuminates the mind (Psalm 119:130).

- •Produces faith (John 20:31; Romans 10:17).
- ·Gives hope (Psalm 119:49; Romans 15:4).
- ·Brings comfort (Psalm 119:82).

•Purifies one's life (John 15:3; Ephesians 5:26). •Makes one a partaker of the divine nature (2 Peter 1:4).

I need moral teaching: What is right and what is wrong? I need to know who made me, and why. How can I prepare to die? What lies beyond death? I want answers to these questions from a believable authority, and I find these in the Bible.

Wrestlers finish regular season

Owen Bjerga won his weight class at the Albany tournament held Feb. 7. He won by fall, in first round, 17-6, in semifinals and won over a ranked wrestler 13-5, in the final.

Logen Weite won his first match at 145 pounds, had two close losses, 9-7 and 9-5, to finish fourth. Sam Jennissen also finished fourth, earning a pin at 152. Cole Winkels earned two pins to finish fifth, while Alex Giza had a pin and finished sixth in a very tough bracket.

Section tournament

Staples-Motley was seeded sixth in the Section 6A team tournament and will wrestle third seeded Otter Tail Central, Tuesday, Feb. 11, 7 p.m. in Underwood. Team semifinals and finals will be held Friday, Feb. 14, at Underwood.

Individual section tournament will be held Saturday, Feb. 22, at Wadena-Deer Creek. Bjerga will be a favorite for the Cardinals to return to state and the Cardinals could see a few more wrestlers with an opportunity to advance in tournament play as well.

Coach Mark Carlson looked back on his second season as the Staples-Motley coach, and commented;

"We've had some good moments this year as a team", "We have an inexperienced roster, the guys are improving every day and making gains.'

"The sections will be a good time for the seniors to finish their high school careers strong and for the underclassmen to gain more experience to build on for next year and years to come."

The Cardinals could still have a few wrestlers out with injuries for the section tournaments.

"One area for us to improve on in the future will be team depth to mitigate injuries leading to forfeits," said Carlson. "You're always going to have injuries here and there in a sport like wrestling, so depth is crucial and we don't have it right now."

Lead slips away

The Staples-Motley boys basketball team lost a lead in the second half and ended up with a 48-41 loss at Royalton on Feb. 4. Against conference leader Pequot Lakes on Feb. 6, they lost 64-29.

Against Royalton, the Cardinals were ahead by nine at halftime.

'We played the rest of the game too tentative. We played not to lose, which is a bad mindset," said Coach Nick Doll. "We will be in some games like this in the near future and we need to stay aggressive and continue to attack.'

At Pequot Lakes, Staples-Motley kept within reach for much of the game, but in the second half they had to switch out of their zone defense to force the action or they would have run the clock out.

'When we went man we didn't stay in front of our guy and didn't rebound. so they outscored us 21-6,² said Doll.

Kerry Lindgren of Staples received the Minnesota Farm Bureau (MFB) Foundation FFA Advisor of the Year award at the the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF) Annual Convention held in Austin, Texas, in January.

"Having the opportunity to observe the Farm Bureau Discussion Meet and the Excellence in Agriculture participants, the future of Farm Bureau leadership is bright. A special thank you to the Minnesota Farm Bureau for this opportunity to attend the Convention," said Lindgren who recently retired as the Staples-Motley High School FFA Advisor.

Also attending the convention were Rachel and Seth Connell, representing the Young Farmers and Ranchers Committee with Rachel serving as chair and on the MFB Board of Directors.

Attendees had the opportunity to attend farm tours and sessions and hear from U.S. President Donald Trump, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Sonny Perdue and AFBF Vice President Scott Vander Wal.

"This was such an incredible opportunity to network with farmers from across the U.S., develop skills, and fuel our passion for agriculture advocacy," said the Connells. "We are very proud of how our YF&R state contest winners did in their respective areas and would encourage YF&Rs to participate."

Four high school students at Staples-Motley were nominated for the ExCEL (Excellence in Community, Education and Leadership) Award, and the AAA (Arts, Athletics, and Academics) Award which are sponsored by the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL).

Torii Nienow and Cole Winkels are juniors at SMHS who were selected as the school's 2019 - 2020 ExCEL Award winners. Sponsored by the Minnesota State High School League, ExCEL is a recognition program designed for Minnesota high school juniors. Students who are active in fine arts and/or athletics, who show leadership qualities and who are model citizens in their community are eligible for the award.

Nienow, the daughter of Adam and Lori Nienow, is active at her school, participating in speech, band, orchestra, choir, Knowledge Bowl, 4-H and theatre. Her favorite classes at school include science, math and music. In the community she is a public library volunteer, sings in the area women's chorus, volunteers at her church (St. John Lutheran in Motley) and is involved in community theatre.

Winkels, the son of Bryan and Amy Winkels, is active at his school, participating in band, choir, football, wrestling and baseball. His favorite subject is math, Cole said, adding that he finds it challenging. In the community he volunteers at his church (Sacred Heart Catholic), and with youth football, basketball and baseball programs.

Jack Tvrrell and Ari Brings are seniors at SMHS who were selected as the school's AAA Award winners. Sponsored by the Minnesota State High School League, AAA is a recognition program designed for Minnesota high school seniors. Students who are active in fine arts, athletics, who show leadership qualities, who are model citizens in their community, and excel with their academics are eligible for the award.

Tyrrell, the son of Jay and Joy Tyrrell, is active in cross country, track and field, speech, band and choir. He noted that he was captain of the cross country team that took 5th place at state last year. Jack enjoys studying and his favorite class is social studies. He plans to attend the University of St. Thomas Seminary in St. Paul next fall

Brings, the daughter of

Cole Winkels

Kai and Heidi Brings, is active in speech, orchestra, band, choir and theatre. She has also participated in cross country, track and field, and swimming. Ari is a part of the PSEO (Postsecondary Enrollment Options) program at Central Lakes College, where she has been enjoying some challenging courses including microbiology. Ari plans to finish her Associates Registered Nursing Degree at CLC next fall.

Blake Boran, Activities & Community Ed. Director at SMHS, said the students had been selected by a panel of coaches, community members, teachers and SMHS Principal Mike Schmidt. "These are great, well-rounded kids," Boran said. "They are the leaders you want to be representing your school and community."
